Pentagon Girds For Battle On Guard

The Pentagon, presumably with a push from the White House, has decided to do battle with Congress concerning the size of the Army Reserve and National Guard. It could lead to one of the most explosive defense issues in the next session of Congress.

The fiscal '59 Appropriations Act requires that the Defense Department maintain an Army Reserve of 300,000 and a National Guard of 400,000.

This compares with the Administration's recommended force levels of 270,000 and 360,000, respectively.

Secretary of Defense McElroy has said that the "floors" prescribed by Congress are binding on the Administration.

The JOURNAL has learned that legislation is being prepared to repeal the Appropriations legislation.

The bill now being drafted at the Pentagon would be sent to the Armed Services Committees.

Defense Department General Counsel Robert Dechert has advised the Services that the "priority" legislation is designed to accomplish purposes directed by the President.

Chances for favorable Congressional action appear dim. First of all, many Armed Services Committee members favor a bigger Reserve and Guard than recommended by the President.

And secondly, the Armed Services Committees are not likely to overturn an

Armed Forces manpower strength, under the twin influences of budget orders from Secretary McElroy and Christmas early-out programs, will begin to tumble next month and will head downward in early 1959.

Although freely conceding that the Nation "realistically" must assume that the aggressive policies of the Communists "are going to continue," Secretary McElroy told a news conference last week that the Army is going to be reduced to 870,000, and the Marine Corps to 175,000.

These were the figures recommended by President Eisenhower last January. Congress voted funds for an Army of 900,000 and a Marine Corps of 200,000, their approximate present strengths.

The day after Secretary McElroy met the press, a news conference with General Maxwell D. Taylor brought from the Army Chief of Staff on 14 November his reiteration of previous testimony to Congress that the Army should have a strength of 925,000.

All Services, as is customary, will authorize the early release of thousands of personnel prior to Christmas.

December also is a month when input is light.

As a consequence, there will be a drop in military strength next month, and it

Pentagon Budget Pinch Will Hamper Cordiner Plans; Congress Must Act

IF the "missing links" in the Cordiner Program to assure military career attractiveness are to be forged, it's going to be up to the 86th Congress to do it.

That is the conclusion that must be reached in the wake of the reports made to Cordiner Committee members at the Pentagon last week.

Stories in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL told how Defense Department leaders had emphasized the progress in effective manpower management that has occurred since enactment of the Military Pay Act of 1958 on 1 June.

That proposal was, of course, the building block of the Cordiner Program.

But other important recommendations to spur career military service, proposed by the Cordiner Committee for action after passage of the pay raise measure, are going to be sidetracked unless Congress takes command.

The Pentagon, for example, advised Chairman Ralph J. Cordiner and his associates that there is no intention to ask Congress to start a program of remote and isolated duty pay for military personnel, as is in effect for other Federal people.

The Cordiner suggestion that military pay be tied to a Cost-of-Living Index also will be continued "under study," with no definitive action planned.

On the housing front, described by the Cordiner Committee as being a critical problem, the Pentagon briefings last week

Restrictions Will Force Many Families To Pay For Own Care, MediCare Chief Says

SERVICE medical facilities most probably will not be able to provide needed medical care for all military families deprived of civilian treatment under recent cutbacks in the Armed Forces MediCare program.

This was revealed 18 November by MediCare Director Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Wergeland, USA, to the annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons in Washington, D. C.

As a result of the MediCare restriction, General Wergeland said, Service hospitals will have to assume the load of medical treatment for military families "to

Defense Department Prepares Legislation For 86th Congress; Will Affect Millions

PENTAGON legal experts are putting the finishing touches on a big package of proposed military laws which the 86th Congress will be asked to approve. The proposals—some old and some new—will affect millions of active duty members of the Armed Forces, the Reserve components, those on the retired rolls and Service families. They involve:

- Promotion and retirement
- Special pay for medical officers
- Dual employment
- Reserve term-retention contracts
- Service Academies
- Military Justice
- A uniform ration
- Army JAG school
- Navy enlistments
- Air Force medals
- Marine Corps lawyers
- Education of dependents
- Extension of the draft
- Reserve Officer Personnel Act

Drafts of many of the legislative items already have been prepared and are ready for transmission to the Congress when it convenes on 7 January. Work on the remaining proposals is being expedited by Defense Department General Counsel

Senate Chairman Seeks Million-Man Army

Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), the powerful Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, believes that the Army should be maintained at a strength of at least 1,000,000.

He has told the Columbus, Ga.-Phenix City, Ala.-Ft. Benning, Ga., Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army that he opposes plans to reduce the size of the Army.

"I'll personally fight against such attempts," the legislative leader asserted.

New Army Colonels

The Army has promoted six lieutenant colonels to colonel in S.O. 229, effective 18 November.

They are Rodger R. Bankson, Inf, Ellis D. Blake, Inf, Herbert C. Ritze, FC, Wyatt G. Trainer, CE, John E. Webster, SigC, and Elwood W. Camp, MSC.

The promotions included those through Sequence Number 60 on the Army Promotion List and Number 2 on the MSC List, Circular 624-35, dated 1 October 1958.

S.O. 229 also named four CWO W-3's to W-4. They are Richard L. Holt, sr., Martin C. Kirstien, Francis A. Petrosky, and Donald M. Varley.

Smaller Army Must Modernize, Secretary McElroy Declares; General Taylor Agrees, Says It Will Take $15 Billion

SECRETARY of Defense McElroy, revealing plans for a cut in Army manpower, has declared:

"What I think is needed in the case of the Army is to modernize the Army forces and that we hope to press forward with."

Mr. McElroy made this comment at a news conference held at the Pentagon 13 November.

The next day, General Maxwell D. Taylor, was asked about the matter of Army modernization. General Nathan F. Twining, JCS Chairman, had spoken on this subject last month at the annual meeting of the Association of the U. S. Army.

The Army Chief of Staff (see Memo) said:

"I could not agree more that modernization is indeed a primary requirement in the Army. We need greater modernization in the fields of firepower, mobility, communications, target identification, and a lot of other areas.

"It is not that we don't know where we are going," General Taylor remarked. "We have a very carefully thought-out program of modernization which would require about five years to attain the level we are seeking."

A reporter asked General Taylor how much money would be required annually for the modernization program.

"Our estimate is about $3 billion a year for procurement," said General Taylor.

This year's total Army budget is only about $9 billion.

There was this exchange with a JOURNAL reporter during General Taylor's press conference:

Q. "General, is the modernization of the Army restricted only by the availability of funds? If you had the funds could you achieve the modernization that everybody says, as you emphasize, you certainly ought to have?"

A. "I wouldn't suggest that every bit of new equipment is in production ready to be purchased; but it is a question of funds not only in the procurement area but in Research and Development as well."

Q. "What I am trying to find out, sir, the Army has been criticized in various quarters for not being modern. Is the reason you are not modernized is lack of money?"

A. "It is certainly no lack of will to be modernized. All we need is the money and we can be completely modernized."

One upshot of the two news conferences is the certainty that Congress next year is going to ask Secretary McElroy what is being done to meet Army modernization requirements and will press General Taylor for details as to Army budget requests in this area.

GENERAL TAYLOR STICKS BY HIS GUNS

THE Army Chief of Staff is holding steadfastly to his position, described in detail to Congress, that the Army should have a strength of 925,000 men.

Present strength is 900,000; it will drop this fiscal year to 870,000.

Asked at his news conference last week if 870,000 is adequate to meet the Army's commitments, General Taylor said:

"This is really an old issue because we expressed our views on the end strength before Congress in great detail six months ago. I testified at that time that I considered a larger figure, a figure of 925,000, to be necessary. But with this 870,000 I am going to do everything I can to see that our missions are fulfilled."

A newsman asked: "Do you think you could operate with fewer than 870,000?"

The General answered: "I would be unhappy."

The reporter persisted: "You would be unhappy."

The General responded: "Yes."

Cutback Ordered

Secretary of Defense McElroy has ordered the Service Secretaries to report by 1 December their plans to get within original Administration manpower goals for this fiscal year.

The Service Secretaries are to report to Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles C. Finucane concerning the feasibility of reaching the reduced manpower targets.

Here are the present and projected strengths of the Services:

| | Present | Projected |
|-------------------|-----------|-----------|
| Army | 901,793 | 870,000 |
| Navy | 641,328 | 630,000 |
| Air Force | 863,800 | 850,000 |
| Marine Corps | 189,361 | 175,000 |
| Total | 2,596,282 | 2,525,000 |

the best of their existing capabilities."

But he said, "It is unlikely that they can take up the entire load, even though they operate at optimum capacity."

"This means that some dependents located near Service hospitals may elect to pay for some kinds of care out of their own pockets rather than wait for care until a later date," he said. "It also means that some dependents not having convenient access to a Service hospital may well choose to pay for such care themselves."

General Wergeland concluded: "These circumstances will certainly tend to force some dependents to pay for their own care if they can possibly do so."

Gen. Twitchell Of Air Force Succeeds Retired Army Colonel As Medical President

Brig. Gen. Harold H. Twitchell, USAF, MC, Command Surgeon of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe, Weisbaden, Germany, is the new President of the Association of Military Surgeons.

He succeeds Col. Charles R. Mueller, USA-Ret., of the Veterans Administration Benefits Office in Washington.

Other officers elected at the meeting were: RAdm. Richard A. Kern, MC, USA-Ret., Professor of Medicine at Temple University, Philadelphia, First Vice President; Dr. Leroy E. Burney, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, Second Vice-President; Maj. Gen. James P. Cooney, MC, USA, Third Vice President; RAdm. Irwin L. Norman, MC, USN, Navy Medical Inspector General; Col. Robert C. Kimberly, MC, NG-Md., Fifth Vice President; and Dr. William S. Middleton, V.A. Chief Medical Director, Sixth Vice President.

Col. Robert E. Bitner, MC, USA-Ret., will continue as Secretary-Treasurer.

Lockheed Neptunes Get New Sub "Eyes"

About 350 Navy Neptune patrol planes will be given "far-reaching" detection capability as a "new concept" system is installed under a $36 million program activated by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation this month.

To date, the Navy has awarded more than $18 million under a two-year program to cover fabrication, assembly and installation of the new electronic system. Use of the highly sensitive gear "will greatly enhance early detection of enemy submarines by making it possible to locate underwater craft at greater ranges than ever before," the Navy said.

The detection system is to be installed aboard two models of the Neptune series, the P2V-5 and the P2V-7.

Enlarged Role For DC, VC Officers Seen By Top Medical Authorities Of All Services

An enlarged medical role for military physicians and dentists in future large scale wars is foreseen by top military medical authorities.

The medical authorities, interviewed by THE JOURNAL at the annual convention of the Association of Military Surgeons in Washington 17-20 November, agreed that dental and veterinary personnel would, in time of war, take over functions now reserved to medical doctors.

The Army has not really decided on what the wartime role of paramedical personnel will be, Surgeon General Silas B. Hays said. However, he noted, medical courses for military dentists and veterinarians will be expanded and the Army will give them a "definite idea" on what their wartime role will be.

General Hays had previously told the Surgeons convention that the number of physicians available in wartime will be "totally unable to cope with the number of casualties."

"Paramedical personnel," he said, "will have to take over many of the duties and procedures which are in peacetime, by custom and law, reserved to the physician and surgeon."

Future courses for dental and veterinary personnel, he said, will include "more of the actual surgical and emergency care techniques than has been the case to date."

RAdm. Bruce E. Bradley, MC, USN, Deputy Navy Surgeon General, noted that Dental Corps officers "by the very nature of their excellent professional backgrounds of training, experience and standards of ethics are fundamentally endowed and capable of rendering extremely valuable service in direct support of medical officers in many more ways than we may realize."

He emphasized that the dentists could be of great help in "the acute phase of an emergency" in helping prepare and sort patients for medical treatment, deciding on patient priorities, administering blood, and performing many other basic medical functions.

Maj. Gen. Dan C. Ogle, Air Force Surgeon General, agreed that dental and veterinary personnel would have an increased wartime role. However, he told THE JOURNAL, "they would not be asked to do definitive, selective or reconstructive surgery." Their role, he said, would be mainly confined to "initial and definitive first aid care."

Submarine Dental Disorders Cause Alarm

AN "alarming" increase in mouth disorders among submariners in atomic-powered and conventional vessels has been called to the attention of the medical profession by Capt. William R. Stanmeyer, DC, USN, Head of Dental Research at the Navy's New London, Conn., Medical Research Laboratory.

Captain Stanmeyer told the annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the U. S. 19 November, that submariners appear to develop twice as many cavities and five times as much mouth tissue damage as personnel on surface vessels. The figures were compiled in an 18-month study at New London.

Gingivitis among submariners, Captain Stanmeyer said, showed "an alarming increase," both in the number of cases and in their severity.

At present, Captain Stanmeyer told THE JOURNAL, the Navy does not know the cause for increased mouth disorders among submariners. Tests are now being conducted at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Center to determine whether the increased mouth disorders are due to atmospheric contaminants in submarines, stress, or lack of good oral hygiene.

GRIDIRON STRIFE

Some people may say there are bigger problems at the Pentagon, but the fact is that the Army and Air Force still haven't been able to tackle successfully the problem of what to do about a 1960 football game.

The U. S. Air Force Academy gridders next year will play Army at Michie Stadium, West Point, the last Saturday in October.

A game between the Air Force and Navy is scheduled for Annapolis in 1960.

All well and good.

But the AF-Army game in '60 has caused a rhubarb.

The Army, maintaining that an original contract calls for the '60 game to be played on a "neutral" field, is complaining because it says the Air Force now wants to play in the Denver area.

One reason the Army is squawking is that it is not keen on playing in the high altitude at Denver.

The Air Force contends, on the other hand, that the other Service Academies must reconcile themselves to grid action in the Rockies—thin air or not.

Guard Battle

action recommended by the Appropriations Committees.

But the Pentagon apparently feels that a formidable principle is involved in the Reserve-Guard manpower action, since if left unchallenged, this procedure possibly could be used elsewhere in the defense budget, thereby curtailing Executive control over the Armed Forces in favor of increased Legislative control.

HIS 10,000TH HOUR. Maj. Gen. John W. Persons, Commander of the Fourteenth "Flying Tiger" Air Force at Robins AFB, Ga., boards a Lockheed T-33 jet "Shooting Star" recently for a flight that completed his 10,000th flying hour. Fewer Men And Less Missile Systems Are Forecast By Secretary Of Defense McElroy For Fiscal '60 Budget Home-stretch Pentagon action on the Fiscal '60 budget can be followed against a background of significant tips given by Secretary of Defense McElroy at a Pentagon news conference last week.

First, it can be stated that manpower totals are likely to show a further decline.

Important also will be a recasting of weapons programs, highlighted by a reduction in what the Secretary describes as a "proliferation" of missiles.

The missile program changes will be inaugurated before the end of the year when the Secretary determines which of two IRBMs will be continued—the Air Force-built Thor or the Army Jupiter.

Beyond the Thor-Jupiter decision, Secretary McElroy will recommend a Fiscal '60 budget that will eliminate other missiles in the Armed Forces.

The Secretary told reporters "there has been a proliferation of missiles beyond what is wise . . . Each service wants to make the best possible use of these missile systems, so you move out very rapidly, and we have got a great, great many missile systems for various purposes."

At the same time, however, Secretary McElroy indicated the possibility that certain missile programs may need to be accelerated.

On the matter of military airlift, the Secretary made it plain no step-up is in the offing. He stressed that this has a relatively low priority.

The Secretary said recent events in the Near East and Far East have pointed up the importance of seapower, but he declined to say whether the Navy would be given a green light for construction of a second nuclear powered carrier.

It was apparent to newsmen that Secretary McElroy has not been given a hard guideline, as yet, on how much the Pentagon will be allowed to seek from the new Congress.

Pressed by reporters, Secretary McElroy evaded any direct response as to whether military spending would remain at present levels, be increased, or be cut.

It is pertinent to note that since the Fiscal '59 budget was sent to Congress in January, the cost of military manpower and hardware both have shown a rise so that increased funds will be necessary to maintain the present level of operation.

Secretary McElroy and the civilian and military leaders of the services, with the cogent counsel of the Bureau of the Budget, have less than one month in which to resolve the fiscal problems confronting the Armed Forces.

The mammoth budget book must go to the Government Printing Office before Christmas, following the final approval of programs for Fiscal '60 by the President.

Here are some matters taken up by Secretary McElroy at the news conference and THE JOURNAL's comments on them:

CONGRESSIONAL RELATIONS—The Secretary anticipates that with the quality of membership on the Armed Services Committees and because "this is too critical a matter for us to be playing around with," that there will be a "minimum" of politics played in the matter of national defense.

"I just do not believe," he said, that "you are going to have anything but an objective consideration of these budgets in terms of their national security interests."

Secretary McElroy, during his first year of Congressional appearances, generally won acclaim from House and Senate Armed Services and Appropriations Committees for his testimony. This can be expected to continue, although the Secretary certainly is headed for troubles in his attempts to justify defense cutbacks, notably in the manpower area.

AIRLIFT PRIORITY—Secretary McElroy, referring to the fact that the matter has come under "repeated reviews by the JCS," reiterated his belief that "our airlift is adequate to our needs." He said that "we would be glad to have more of everything we do," but added that "we find that additional airlift is a relatively low priority as compared with many other of the requirements of the Defense Department."

Asked if this applies equally to modernization of aircraft, Mr. McElroy said: "Well, we would like to modernize the airlift but that also is something we do not find as urgent as some other requirements of the Defense Department."

It is obvious that the Administration has no intention of using extra funds voted by Congress for military airlift during this fiscal year. As a consequence, legislators who fought for an expanded airlift budget in fiscal '59 can be expected to lean hard against Defense witnesses who make presentations on the fiscal '60

Strong Senate Backing Seen Possible For Army's Manpower, Budget Bid

THE Army's bid for increased manpower and a bigger share of the military budget could find strong backing in the new Senate.

Almost one-half of the members of the Senate in the 86th Congress have served in the Army or maintain Army Reserve or National Guard affiliations. Two are Brigadier Generals: Senator Strom Thurmond (D-S. C.) and Senator-Elect Kenneth B. Keating (R-N. Y.).

A JOURNAL analysis of the new Senate shows that 40 Senators have served in the Army, 14 in the Navy, six in the Air Force and four in the Marine Corps.

Included in these totals are Senator-Elect Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) who has served in both the Army and Navy, and Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), who has served in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

Available biographical material indicates that 35 Senators have had no military service or Reserve or National Guard affiliation.

One member of the Senate, 91-year-old Senator Theodore Green (D-R. I.), is an Army veteran of the Spanish-American War. Most, however, are veterans of WWI, WWII or both.

Two of the most-decorated members of the Senate are Carolinians: Senator Thurmond and Senator Sam Ervin (D-N. C.).

General Thurmond was a circuit judge at the time WWII erupted. He volunteered for active duty the day war was declared against Germany, served with the 82d Airborne in the invasion of Normandy, later served in the Pacific Theater, and was awarded fourteen decorations including the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with "V," Purple Heart, French Croix de Guerre and the Belgian Order of the Crown. He is a past national president of the Reserve Officers Association.

Senator Ervin served in France with the First Division during WWI. He was twice wounded in combat, twice cited for gallantry in action, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the French Fourragere.

Pentagon Is Silent On Plans To End Retired Pay Inequity

Pentagon silence to members of the Cordiner Committee concerning the current retired pay inequity means that remedial legislation must be sparked on Capitol Hill.

The Cordiner Committee had insisted that retired Service people receive benefits from the Military Pay Act of 1958.

At first, the Defense Department, then under Secretary Charles E. Wilson, supported the Cordiner proposals on retired pay. But the Bureau of the Budget objected.

Ultimately, a Pay Bill was enacted which gave a 6% cost-of-living increase to those retired before 1 June 1958, and substantially more to persons retired after that date.

During recent months, there has been strong support for amending the Pay Act to give the same benefits to all retired persons. Legislation to achieve this objective was introduced at the Capitol just prior to adjournment of the last session of Congress.

There had been some hopes that the Pentagon would take a positive stand on this legislation during last week's briefings for the Cordiner Committee. But that wasn't done.

This means that, at best, the Administration will maintain a leave-it-up-to-Congress attitude on the subject. At worst, the Administration could express opposition to the plan to equalize retired pay scales.

As was reported in THE JOURNAL of 15 November, Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, USA-Ret., President, and RADM. H. A. Houser, USN-Ret., Legislative Director, of the Retired Officers Association, conferred last week with President Eisenhower at the White House.

Presumably, the matter of retired pay inequities was one subject of discussion at this session.

At the Capitol, newly reelected Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), a colonel in the Air Force Reserve, is expected to lead the campaign for his bill to give all retired persons, no matter the date on which they left active duty, benefits of the new pay tables.

Missile Commands At Bragg And Hood Are Placed Under Control Of STRAC

THE Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) has been given control of new missile support commands at Ft. Bragg, N. C., and Ft. Hood, Tex.

They are the 3d (Air Transportable) Missile Command at Bragg and the 2d (Medium) at Hood, equipped with either conventional or atomic-warheaded Honest John rockets and Corporal missiles.

The Army also has the 1st (Medium) and 4th (Air Transportable) Missile Commands in Italy and Korea, respectively.

Air Transportable Missile Commands, with a strength of about 1,100 men, normally are composed of an Honest John battalion, an infantry element for security, and support units.

The typical Medium Missile Command has about 5,000 men, with a Corporal Battalion, two Honest John rocket battalions, an armed infantry battalion, a sky cavalry battalion for target acquisition, plus support elements.

Other major units which have been identified as part of STRAC are Headquarters XVIII Airborne Corps and the 82d Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg; 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.; 4th Infantry Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash.; 1st Infantry Division, Ft. Riley, Kans.; 2d Infantry Brigade, Ft. Devens, Mass.; Armored Combat command, Ft. Polk, La.; and the 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment, Ft. Meade, Md.

Shift Artillery Brigadiers

Brig. Gen. Ethan A. Chapman, 7th Infantry Division Artillery Commander in Korea, will report to Army Air Defense Command Headquarters at Ent AFB, Colo., next February.

The same month will find Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dunn, 35th Artillery Brigade Commanding General, Ft. Meade, Md., moving to duty with the Army Element in the Office of the JCS.

Gen. Griffing Reserve Deputy

Maj. Gen. Lewis S. Griffing is the new Fourth Army Deputy Commanding General for Reserve Affairs at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

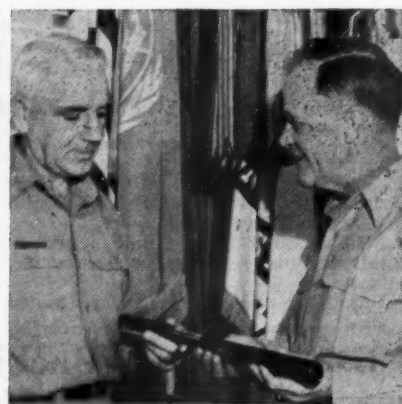

He replaces Lt. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, jr., new Fourth Army Commanding General.

Gen. Garvin To Retire, Gen. Curtis To Kilmer

Maj. Gen. Crump Garvin, Deputy Third Army CG, Ft. McPherson, Ga., will retire 31 December after more than 38 years' service.

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Curtis, Chief, MAAG Korea, will report to II Army Corps (Reserve), Camp Kilmer, N. J., in February.

Brig. Gen. John D. F. Phillips, I Corps Artillery Commander in Korea, will join the III Corps at Ft. Hood, Tex., next March.

Meade Signal Officer

Lt. Col. William D. McClellan has been appointed Post Signal Officer at Ft. Meade, Md.

Colonel McClellan, a widower, resides with his two children at 327 Gloucester Drive, Glen Burnie, Md.

Army Promotes 58 To Temporary Captain

THE Army, in S.O. 226, effective 13 November, has promoted 58 first lieutenants to captain, including Lucy C. Bond, WAC, and four MSC officers, Robert D. Costello, John J. Davis, Charles R. Huskey, and George R. Randolph.

For line officers, the cutoff was Number 2059 and Number 25 on the WAC list in DA Circular 624-31, dated 5 August 1958. The MSC promotions are through Number 95 in the list published in Circular 624-29, dated 18 July 1958.

Redstone Fate In President's Hands; There's No Doubt About That

THERE may be serious differences of viewpoint concerning the proposal that the Army's missile team at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., should be placed under the new National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

But there's no question whatsoever about who is going to decide the issue. Secretary McElroy was asked 13 November for his views on the matter.

He replied: "The best answer I can give you on this is that there will not be any compromise of our capability to produce needed missiles in any decision that is reached. And inasmuch as the President has already declared that such a decision is going to be made by him on the advice of the Space Committee, I think it must be clear that this is going to be done in the national interests and he, the President, is going to make the decision."

"I think we had better wait for that," said Secretary McElroy. "I think it will probably be made sometime in the next couple of weeks."

General Maxwell D. Taylor was asked about the Redstone matter on 14 November.

The Army Chief of Staff said: "I can assure you that all interested parties are now conferring very carefully, attempting to find the solution which is the best from the point of view of the nation. I believe that can be found."

General Taylor, pressed for additional comments at a news conference, said:

"Obviously, anything that breaks up that very fine team at Huntsville for any purpose would not be just an Army disaster, but a National disaster."

A reporter queried: "No one has proposed to break up the team, have they, sir?"

General Taylor responded: "No, I sincerely hope that's not contemplated. I would say this matter is being closely studied at the present time and the President will make the ultimate decision."

In Washington, D. C., this week, Dr. Wernher von Braun was asked to give his views on the NASA proposal.

He replied: "I think that is in the hands of the President and therefore is in very good hands."

Army Will Study Use Of Reservists To Augment Nike Missile Batteries

THE Army will launch a six-month test beginning in February to determine the practicability of assigning Reservists to augment active Nike batteries during emergency operations.

The test will be conducted with two batteries in the Chicago area.

If successful, the Army intends to assign significant numbers of Reservists with missile skills for training with nearby active units in all parts of the Nation.

At present, there are no USAR units to which Army Reservists can be assigned to maintain proficiency gained from prior missile service.

AERONUTRONIC ANNOUNCES FORMATION OF TACTICAL WEAPON SYSTEMS DIVISION

New division of Aeronutronic Systems, Inc., now offers advanced technological capabilities for producing tactical weapons

Aeronutronic's Tactical Weapon Systems Division was established with the broad charter to conceive, design and produce highly sophisticated tactical weapons embodying the most advanced systems technology. It is dedicated to applying these advancements in the state of the art to the development and production of tomorrow's weapons—and is supported with the broad manufacturing experience that pioneered mass production methods for precision products. For additional information, you are invited to write the Office of the General Manager.

Navy Slates Selection Boards To Pick All Ranks Of Reservists; Zones Are Told

THE Bureau of Naval Personnel has established Naval Reserve officer promotion zones and tentative convening dates for boards to select all ranks of officers. Reserve officers, both men and women, will be considered provided they are:

- TAR officers on active duty;
- TAR's on active duty who have not been considered by an active duty board meeting in Fiscal Year 1959;
- Reserve officers on inactive duty, in an active status, who have earned at least 12 retirement points during FY 1958. (Officers released from active duty on or after 1 July 1955 are not subject to the retirement point requirements); and,
- Women Reservists on active duty, excluding Medical Service and Nurse Corps officers.

Reserve warrants and chief warrant officers will be considered for advancement by a selection board slated to meet 12 May 1959, and will be eligible if they earned 12 retirement points during FY 1958 and, on 30 June 1960 will have completed the following number of years' service in present grade: W-1 to W-2, three years; W-2 to W-3 and W-3 to W-4, six years.

The following chart gives the name of the junior officer in each zone and his lineal position in the 1 July 1955 Reserve Register (an asterisk denotes that the officer is not in proper position in the Register; in this case, the Register number shown is that of the next senior officer in proper position):

The blanks in the Lieutenant column mean that the officers were not listed when the Naval Reserve Register was published more than three years ago.

Here's a rundown of the dates the various boards are scheduled to meet during 1959

To Captain—Line, 6 January; Staff, 24 February.

To Commander—Line, 6 January; Staff, 24 February.

To Lieutenant Commander—Line, 10 March; Staff, 28 April.

To Lieutenant—Line, 14 April; Staff, 2 June.

Officers of the Nurse Corps Reserve are eligible for consideration when they are senior to the active duty junior officer of the same rank in the Regular Navy who have been selected for promotion. Accordingly, promotion zones for Reserve Nurses will be established upon final approval for the FY 1959 Regular selection boards.

SPACE TRAVELER, LCDR. Jack Neiman, Jr., USN, (right) is presented the Commendation Medal by RADM. Lewis S. Parks, USN, during ceremonies on board the USS Newport News in Golfe Juan, France. Neiman earned the award for his "outstanding contribution to the advancement of Naval aviation" when he spent 44 hours in the Norfolk Naval Air Station pressure chamber last May testing a new space travel suit at simulated altitudes ranging from 80,000 to 110,000 feet.

New Ammunition Ship Slides Down The Way

The fourth vessel in the Navy's newest class of ammunition ships, USS Pyram (AE-24), was launched 5 November at Bethlehem Steel Company's Sparrow Point Shipyard, Baltimore, Md.

Marine Corps Drops 13-Man Squad Drill; Reverts To Eight-Man Style; Keeps LPM

Marine Corps Headquarters has ordered abandonment of the 13-man squad drill in use since 1956 and has told all commands to become proficient in performance of the "old Corps" eight-man drill by 1 March. The eight-man squad drill was used by the Corps prior to WWII.

When the large influx of draftees caused a necessity for speeded-up training, however, the Corps eliminated the complex drill in favor of the simpler Landing Party Drill which was used for mass movement of large numbers of men.

The LPM Drill, because of the fact that there were only a few oral commands which could be executed simultaneously by all the men in large or small formations, saved the Corps time in basic training of recruits and draftees.

After the War, field commanders recommended to Headquarters that the 13-man drill be adopted. Local commanders reasoned that since the basic combat squad was composed of 12 men and a squad leader such drill was the logical conclusion. Experience in the field, however, has shown that the 13-man squad drill presents an unmilitary appearance.

Both the 13-man and the eight-man squad drills, unlike the LPM drill, require each individual to exercise individual thinking in carrying out the commands of his superior. A "Left Flank" order, for example, is not executed by simultaneous movement of the entire formation. On the contrary, each individual in the formation must know the exact number of steps he must take in a predetermined direction. He must be able to hit his spot precisely, mark time in place by mental count until the remaining members of his squad are in proper position, and move off in the right direction along with the other members of his squad.

Formations of 13 men it has been found are too cumbersome for the precision needed in ceremonies, inspections, parades and disciplinary training.

Headquarters said reversion to the eight-man drill does not mean elimination of the LPM drill which will continue to be used for utility movements of troops. The LPM drill is most suitable for combat situations when precision of movement is not needed.

All new recruits will be taught the eight-man squad drill as they enter the Corps. The loose LPM Drill, which does not require much time to learn, will be used when Leathernecks are undergoing more advanced training such as participating in field exercises.

Women Marines also will be required to learn the new "eight-man" drill.

15 Women Marines Win Permanent Rank

A Marine Corps selection board has named 15 women officers, including one lieutenant colonel, one major, and 13 captains, for permanent rank.

They are:

Lieutenant Colonel—Mary J. Hale.

Major—Essie M. Lucas.

Captain—Patricia A. Watson, Inger A. Beaumont, Frances M. Devos, Theresa M. Hayes, Grace A. Overholser, Irene L. Ray, Marie J. Halvorsen, Beverly Schofield, Donrue Weaver, Ellen B. Moroney, Claribel M. Merritt, Jenny Wrenn and Carol A. Blair.

B/G BOWSER COMMANDS PACIFIC FORCE TROOPS

Brig. Gen. Alpha L. Bowser, Assistant Division Commander, First Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif., succeeds Brig. Gen. Randall M. Victory as Commanding General, Force Troops, FMF Pacific, and Commanding General, MCB 29 Palms, Calif., in January. General Victory has requested retirement after nearly 30 years' service.

Col. Thomas F. Riley, who was named for one-star rank by this year's selection board, will move into the billet vacated by General Bowser. Colonel Riley is currently serving as Chief of Staff, MCB Camp Pendleton.

Air Force-Navy Seek Propeller Demise In Pilot Training; Jet All The Way

THE Air Force is driving toward all-jet pilot training program, eliminating the use of propeller driven planes for primary instruction.

A similar program has been adopted by the Navy.

The Air Force's project All-Jet will see 38 student pilots begin their initial flight instruction in jets 20 November at Bainbridge AB, Georgia. A second group in the same class will go through the normal propeller-to-jet course sequence to provide a basis for evaluation.

Student pilots normally receive 30 hours of flight training in the propeller-driven Beechcraft T-34, and then progress to 100 hours of training in the Cessna T-37. Those participating in the test will receive 115 hours of flying, all in the T-37.

Air Force officials say it will take 10 to 12 hours for a student in the test group to solo in the T-37. Average students solo after 10½ hours in the propeller-driven T-34, but then take nine more hours before they can solo in the jet trainer.

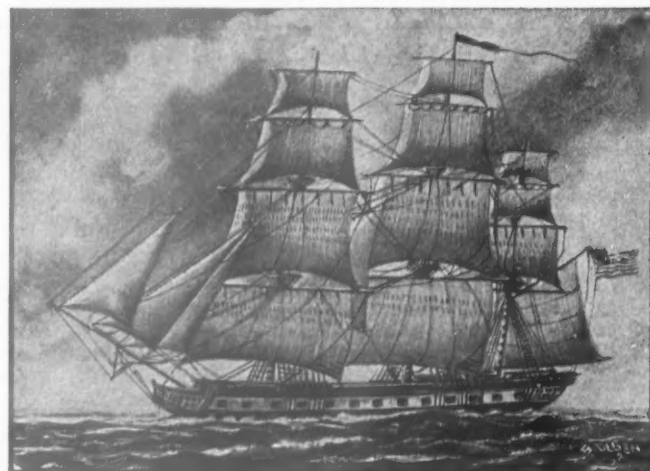

Bainbridge, where Project All-Jet will be conducted, is a civilian primary pilot training school, operated under contract to the Air Training Command by Southern Airways Company, Birmingham, Ala. It is one of six primary schools operated for the Air Force by private contractors.

First class in the Navy's all-jet program is under instruction at Pensacola, Fla.

LOW COST PROTECTION. USS ESSEX. Originally fitted out in 1799 and built by public subscription the Essex afforded low cost protection for the people of the United States. Carrying 32 guns she gained fame on her famous raiding cruise in the South Pacific from 1812 to 1814.

Eighty years later, NAVY MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION was founded. The purpose was to give low cost protection to members of the Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, and their families. For SEVENTY-NINE YEARS NMA has continued to provide this LOW COST PROTECTION.

Write us today for our free booklet that will explain the full services and benefits of NAVY MUTUAL AID to you.

ELIGIBILITY. All permanent and temporary officers and warrant officers of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, including reserve officers on extended active duty, and not over 62 years of age, are eligible.

MAJ. GEN. CHESTER E. MCCARTY (center), commander of Twelfth Air Force, Waco, Tex., discusses future combat utilization of his new Lockheed F-104C Starfighter with two TAC generals, Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, Jr., (left), Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, and Brig. Gen. Cecil H. Childre (right), Director of Operations and Training. The new F-104C, specially designed for TAC's global composite air strike forces, is expected to fly at least 100 miles per hour faster than the F-104B which now holds the world's speed and altitude records.

Air Materiel Area Tells Key Changes

Tentative selections of key personnel involved in the reorganization of three staff agencies of the Oklahoma City Air Materiel Area Headquarters and the establishment of a new directorate are announced this week by Maj. Gen. T. P. Gerrity, Commander.

The reorganization is scheduled to be effective January 1. Approximately 2,000 OCAMA personnel will be reassigned, principally from Maintenance and Supply, to the new directorate of Logistics Support Management.

Col. Howard B. Seim, Chief of the Plans and Programming office, was named as director of the new organization. Mr. Travis Thomas will serve as Deputy Director.

Lt Col. H. J. LaBrenz will succeed Colonel Seim as Chief of Plans and Programming, with Mr. Arthur de la Garza appointed to serve as Colonel LaBrenz' deputy.

Col. Carl V. Ekstrand, present Director of Maintenance Engineering, Tinker, will continue to head Directorate, with Mr. Clovis Davis remaining as Deputy Director. Also continuing in their present positions will be Col. Ernest L. Ramme, Director of Supply and Services and Mr. Haskell Martin as Deputy Director.

General Gerrity said the tentative selections of personnel at division level in the new directorate of Logistics Support Management are as follows:

B-52—Col. Ray M. Hawley; B-47—Col. James W. Guthrie; KC-135—Maj. W. W. Sanders; KC-97, B-50, B-29—Lt. Col. Gerald A. Leen; Engine—Maj. Lawrence B. Russell, Jr.; Commodity—Lt. Col. Eugene R. Murphy; Services and Support—Lt. Col. Robert M. Wilson; Science and Engineering—Lt. Col. Jack S. Zeigler; and Plans and Management Office—Col. Charles A. LeClair.

B/G RUSSELL HEADS NEW SAC DIVISION

Brig. Gen. Austin J. Russell will assume command of SAC's newest air division at Turner AFB, Ga., shortly after the first of the year. Commander of the 4080th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Laughlin AFB, Tex., General Russell will relinquish that command to Col. Andrew J. Bratton, Jr., who has been serving as Deputy Commander at Laughlin.

An earlier change of command will take place at Chennault AFB, La., when Col. Robert A. Strauss relieves Col. Jacob J. Brogger, as Commander of the 806th Air Division.

Colonel Brogger has been named to a USAF assignment in Washington and Colonel Strauss gives up his command of the 384th Bomb Wing at Little Rock AFB, Ark. Col. Davison Dalziel, Deputy Commander of the 384th, will succeed Colonel Strauss at Little Rock.

SAC also named two new wing commanders, Col. Osie V. Jones, former Director of Operation for the 4238th Strat Wing at Barksdale, to command the newly activated 4241st Strat Wing at Seymour-Johnson, N. C.

Barksdale's 4th Air Division director of operations, Col. Frank B. Elliot will command the 4245th Strat Wing at Sheppard AFB, Tex.

Lockheed C-130 Support Wins Praise For Gen. Anderson's Warner-Robins Unit

The Warner Robins Air Materiel Area at Robins AFB, Ga., has received high praise from top Air Force officials for outstanding support of the C-130 Hercules weapons system in Europe during the recent Near East crisis.

Letters of appreciation from Headquarters United States Air Forces in Europe have been forwarded to Maj. Gen. A. V. P. Anderson, Jr., WRAMA Commander, by General E. W. Rawlings, Commander of Air Materiel Command.

General Rawlings extended his personal appreciation to WRAMA personnel who had a part in the fine team effort in support of the 317th Troop Carrier Wing at Evreux, France.

During the Lebanon crisis, Lockheed C-130 aircraft flew 4½ million pounds of equipment and moved more than 2,300 troops to the Near East. Support of the C-130 weapons system was assumed by WRAMA last January.

Col. Robert D. Forman, 317th Wing Commander, reported that following the support transfer to WRAMA Gen. Anderson and a team of logistic specialists made a two-day visit to Evreux to assess the Wing's problems.

Other commendatory remarks were received from Brig. Gen. James P. Newberry, Deputy CofS for Materiel, Headquarters USAF, who noted the high degree of WRAMA teamwork, and from Col. Clyde Box, Commander of the 322d Air Division, USAF.

AMC Plans Phase-Out, Gen. Rawlings Tells NDTA

Streamlining of the Air Materiel Command will see the phase-out of 18 AMC installations in the continental U. S. by 1962, with an elimination of over 12,000 command personnel.

The reductions, outlined by General E. W. Rawlings before the National Defense Transportation Association Convention in St. Louis, Mo., 11 November, will bring the total number of AMC installations eliminated in the period 1952-1962 to 41. Total number of positions cut during this period will be 65,000.

AF "Eagles" Move

Col. Ernest C. Hardin, Jr., formerly Deputy Director of Plans, SAC Headquarters has arrived at Torrejon AB, Spain, to become Deputy Commander, Sixteenth Air Force, under Maj. Gen. H. K. Moody. He replaces Col. William E. Creer, who commands the 801st Air Division at Lockbourne AFB, Ohio.

Colonel Hardin was accompanied to Spain by his wife, Mrs. Ethel S. Hardin and their four children, Melinda, 10; Ernest C. III, 7; Shelly, 5, and Sally, 1.

Col. Andrew J. Bing is the new Deputy Commander, Air Reserve Records Center, Denver.

Col. George R. Brooking relinquishes command of the Weapons Controller School and 3625th Technical Training Group, Tyndall AFB, Fla., 15 November to take command of the 3550th Flying Training Group, Moody AFB, Valdosta, Ga.

Col. Paul E. Dreima has been reassigned from SHAPE headquarters in Paris to become Chief of the Comptroller's Statistical Services Division, Air Materiel Command Headquarters, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Col. Robert M. Creech, reporting from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Ft. McNair, Va., has been assigned as Chief of the Air Materiel Command Liaison Office, Patrick AFB, Fla.

Chap. (Col.) George S. Wilson, USAF, former Staff Chaplain, Air Research and Development Command, has become staff chaplain, Strategic Air Command, Offutt AFB, Neb. He succeeds Chap. (Col.) Charles W. Marteney, who is the new Staff Chaplain Tactical Air Command Headquarters, Langley AFB, Va.

Col. Richard O. Hunziker, reports from the National War College, Washington, D.C., as Director of Materiel at 2d Air Force Headquarters, Barksdale AFB, La. He succeeds Col. Thomas B. Storey, who now commands the 823d Air Division, Homestead AFB, Fla.

ROCKET CHIEF

Col. John P. Stapp, USAF, (MC), Chief of the Aero-Medical Laboratory at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, took over as President of the American Rocket Society 20 November at the group's annual meeting in New York City.

Physcial Defects May Aid First Spacemen

Future spacemen will need to be a combination of scientist, engineer and modern jet pilot, according to Maj. Gerald A. Champlin, USA, Chief Surgeon of the General Liaison Group, Army Ordnance Missile Command, Huntsville, Ala.

It might also help, he said, if they are physically defective.

The first men in space should be scientists and engineers, Major Champlin said, to meet unforeseen technical problems which could occur and to bring back the maximum amount of scientific information from the flight.

He should be a "jet pilot of proven ability and efficiency" so that he would have the necessary flying skills and physical stamina.

However, Major Champlin said, "some physical defects may enhance the effectiveness of man in space."

For example, he said, a deaf mute or someone else whose vestibular function had been destroyed would not be affected by the spinning of a space vehicle and could orient himself within the vehicle simply by use of his eyes. Without such a defect, a spaceman could become disoriented and perhaps even helpless within his craft.

In selecting the first spacemen, the major noted, the "psychologist should have a field day." In addition to the routine psychological testing, he said, future spacemen will have to undergo surveillance on smoking, sex, and alcohol habits.

The major gave no additional details on this monitoring.

Manpower Cuts Just Don't Make Sense

Members of Congress who are opposed to the plans announced by Secretary of Defense McElroy for cuts in military manpower levels below those for which funds have been voted, need look no further than the Secretary's own remarks to buttress their arguments.

At the very press conference at which he spoke of a 55,000 man drop this fiscal year in the Army and Marine Corps, the Secretary was asked to forecast what trouble spot in the world "represents the nearest thing to a serious threat to peace now."

Back at the Pentagon from an extended inspection trip abroad, Mr. McElroy responded: "Well, I can't forecast that one. The world is certainly being pushed aggressively by the Communist world at a number of points."

Mr. McElroy then amplified his answer: "This seems to be a policy of the Communist world and while I would like to believe that this wasn't going to continue I think realistically we have got to assume that it will."

In short, the Secretary does not expect that Communist pressure will be reduced, but he does think that U. S. military manpower can be.

The Secretary will be shortsighted if he does not anticipate that Congress will insist on his explaining this mystifying rationale.

It's The Budget That Puts The Bite On Airlift

If there ever was any doubt as to what's holding back the expansion or modernization of the military airlift, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy put it to rest at his press conference last week.

A newsman asked the Secretary if he found anything on his recent trip which led him to believe that we could do a little bit better in airlift. Mr. McElroy said that he is sure everyone knows we would be glad to have more airlift, but repeated reviews by the Joint Chiefs of Staff give it relatively low priority. Another reporter wanted to know if the same reasoning applies to modernization of the airlift. It does, he replied, saying that "we would like to modernize the airlift" but find it is not as urgent as some other requirements.

The need for a more substantial modernized airlift has been rather thoroughly established. Also established is the fact that up-to-date equipment, although requiring an initial outlay, would provide added efficiency and economy at the same time. The suggestion has been made that the initial outlay be minimized by renting modern cargo aircraft from civilian firms, but apparently no action has been taken along these lines.

Budget considerations rather than defense needs still seem to be the controlling factor.

Pure Research And National Defense

"For the first time the Defense Department is prepared to sponsor pure research against the judgment that it might lead to a valid military application without proving the judgment in advance."

In these heartening words, RAdm. John E. Clark, Deputy Director, Advanced Research Projects Agency, has pledged that ARPA will not be restricted by the earlier negative attitudes toward pure research.

In an address to the Supervisors Club of Chance Vought Aircraft at Dallas, Tex., Admiral Clark recalled that military research and development has been hampered in the past by the requirement that funds be allocated to research only when the product could be immediately identified with a weapon system. This older policy stemmed from the conservative background of former Secretary Charles E. Wilson. But, declared Admiral Clark, "ARPA does not have this limitation."

Admiral Clark told the Chance Vought supervisors that research which at first glance seems to be of no anticipated special significance militarily, often works out in practice to accomplish a revolution in technology and exercises a revolutionary influence on weapon systems. He gave as examples the research into semi-conductors which led to the replacing of many electronic tubes and made possible great advances in guided and automatic weapons. Today, he pointed out, such sciences as celestial mechanics and astrophysics, cybernetics, and many others, open vast vistas for defense improvements.

"We must have the courage," Admiral Clark declared, "to look into the future and to invest in it through research. We must further have the courage and confidence in our way of life not to scare easily; but to pursue our scientific and military programs on earth and in space with the dynamic quality of a nation seeking to express its integrity and the strength of its form of government."

This is a most forward looking and welcome attitude. Prior to World War II, the United States took a back seat to Germany in the field of pure research. After the war there was a great awakening to our deficiencies in this area, and, stimulated by the research data seized from German laboratories, we began an expansion program. Now that ARPA has adopted the sponsorship of pure research as a part of its program, we hope that American firms will be encouraged to devote funds and talent to pure research as well as to development projects.

READERS' VIEWS

AUSA Coverage

■ This is to express our appreciation for the excellent coverage which you gave to our 1958 Annual Meeting in the ARMY-NAVY-AIR FORCE JOURNAL. We much appreciate having such widespread publicity on the meeting through the Armed Forces. Certainly, we feel that your paper did an excellent job on their coverage of the meeting.

WALTER L. WEIBLE,
LT. GENERAL, USA-RET.
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT,
ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S. ARMY

Greens For U. S. Only

■ I have just returned from a short course of instruction at a U. S. Army service school. While there, I observed several allied officers (foreign nationals) wearing the U. S. Army green uniform, with of course, their own national insignia.

I fail to understand the necessity of making Army greens available in such cases. Just a few short years ago, the QM clothing store price was reduced to encourage the sale of pinks and greens. Certainly, a small inventory of this obsolete uniform could have been retained for the purpose of outfitting allied officers, if this course of action is considered necessary.

The change from the OD 33 and pink and green uniform to the present U. S. Army green was long needed and has been well received. However, the present uniform should only be issued or sold to members of the U. S. Army and its reserve components. In my opinion, it should not be made available to allied officers and men of friendly foreign nations.

This seems to be purely an Army problem. To the best of my knowledge, the U. S. Air Force and the U. S. Navy have not made their uniform available to allied officers, and I recommend that the U. S. Army pursue the same policy.

It would be appreciated if the foregoing were to be published in THE JOURNAL. Perhaps there are others in the Army who feel as strongly as I do that the wearing of the U. S. Army green uniform should be restricted to members of the U. S. Army and its reserve components only.

RAY F. COYLE, JR.
LT. COL., AGC
ADJUTANT GENERAL

Encouragement To Promotion

■ Since it appears that future temporary promotions, particularly to Colonel, are to be conspicuous by their paucity, it seems a system could be adopted that would at least hold out a glimmer of hope to those not in the current zone of consideration.

At the present time there are sufficient Lieutenant Colonels in the current zone who were not selected on the last list to fill the vacancies to Colonel for approximately the next two years. This is a bleak outlook indeed for those who are perhaps only a month or two out of the present zone—date of rank, for example, in November or December 1959. For those who rank from 1951 and later, the prospects are not only bleak—they are downright black.

Inasmuch as we have raised the morale of the small minority (the truly outstanding selections) the same should be done for the many fine officers junior to the present zone but not selected as outstanding—the majority in other words.

This can be accomplished by not restricting the next selection board to the present zone of consideration but extending the primary zone several months—the same procedure to be followed by each succeeding selection board. This procedure will at least hold out a faint glimmer of hope to those not in the current zone—at least they will be considered years before they would be under the present system.

Such a system will have a most salubrious effect on morale and will, to a extent, equalize the rank inequity traceable to the fortunes or misfortunes of World War II assignments.

After all, since we are committed to a curtailed system of promotion by merit (outstanding selections) why not enlarge the system and offer some encouragement to the vast majority?

LT. COLONEL, RA

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Enlisted personnel of the Regular Army Women's Army Corps are entitled to the same privileges as all other enlisted personnel of the Army—including the right to be considered for admission to Soldier's Home. Therefore, the Finance Department is instructing its personnel, via an amended version of AR 35-2440, that monthly deductions of 10 cents are to be made from the pay of WAC enlistees for support of the Soldier's Home.

50 Years Ago—The Army and Navy Union is circulating a petition to be sent to Congress, in favor of the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the Navy after 25 years' actual service. It points out that the enlisted men of the Army and Marine Corps are allowed double time while serving in our insular possessions, when computing the thirty years' time which entitles them to be placed on the retired list. The enlisted men of the Navy have no such allowances, but are required to serve 30 years' actual service before they can retire.

95 Years Ago—The greatest credit is due to the Navy Department for the promptitude with which the deficiencies of the Wilmington blockade have been remedied. That port is now pretty thoroughly closed, leaving the rebels without a single open port for the entry of supplies from abroad.

Defense Department Readies Legislation For 86th Congress; Will Affect Millions

From first page—Robert Dechert. He has told the Service Secretaries to make "every effort" to complete coordination on all of the programmed items "as expeditiously as possible."

Of chief interest to most officers of the Armed Forces are the so-called "White Charger" and "Navy Hump" bills. Only the former, however, has been labeled as a "priority" item by the Pentagon.

Officially known as the Career Officer Management Plan, the White Charger proposal was submitted to the Congress this year and introduced in the Senate as S. 3748. It was not acted upon, however, and has since been undergoing a re-write in the Pentagon. Official sources say it has been "substantially broadened." The plan is designed to accelerate both promotion and retirement in the Army and Air Force.

The "Navy Hump" bill is designed to do much the same thing for the Navy and Marine Corps by speeding the retirement of senior officers who have served overlong in grade. It was introduced and hearings were held in the House during the last Congress but no final action was taken, due to opposition which developed within the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee.

Although not on the Defense Department list of "priority" legislation, the hump plan is expected to meet more favorable consideration in the new Congress as a result of spadework by House Armed Services Committee Counsel John R. Blandford during the Congressional recess. Blandford, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, spent his two weeks' active duty at Marine Corps Headquarters working on the proposal. His efforts are certain to assure that many of the major kinks in the plan will be ironed out before the measure again is presented to the Kilday Subcommittee.

Retired officers will be interested particularly in the proposal to eliminate dual employment and dual compensation restrictions. This measure, drafted by the Pentagon last year, has been pigeon-holed at the Bureau of the Budget for the last five months. General Counsel Dechert has told the Navy, which is the action-agency for the proposal, to prepare a "current draft" for re-submission.

Congress also will be asked to extend the draft act, including those sections which apply to medical personnel, and this, in turn, requires a bill (being drafted and coordinated by the Army) to continue in effect the special incentive pay for medical officers, which is due to expire next year.

The term-retention contract plan for active-duty Reservists also will go forward again. Details of the new proposal have not been disclosed, but the revised bill, prepared by the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel, differs somewhat from both the House and Senate measures introduced this year. The proposal has been given a "priority" tag.

An omnibus measure dealing with appointments to the Army, Navy and Air Force Academies is included in the package. It was not clear whether the Defense Department will press for increased Presidential appointments from among Service sons. The latter matter has met with opposition in the Congress, but it is doubtful that President Eisenhower, who has taken a personal interest in the plan, will allow it to be dropped. The Academy bill has not, however, been placed on the priority list.

Several items are designed simply to continue present laws which are due to expire. Legislation which the Pentagon wants to keep on the books includes the public laws establishing (1) authorized strengths for the Armed Forces, (2) Armed Services housing mortgage insurance (to be extended until 30 June 1960), (3) duty-free entry for gifts sent to the U. S. by Service personnel, (4) the Dependents Assistance Act, (5) the six-month Reserve training program, (6) the draft and (7) special pay for medical personnel. Numbers one, two, six and seven are priority items.

One proposal still under study in the Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense (MP&R) Charles C. Finucane is a plan to provide family separation allowances for personnel whose dependents do not reside at permanent duty stations, and to validate payments made after 1 March 1956. The Navy is the action agency for this proposal.

Some of the other items in the big package will:

- Establish a personnel administration system for Defense Department dependent schools in foreign countries.

- Amend laws relating to the active duty requirements for members of the Ready Reserve and National Guard.

- Extend readjustment pay provisions to Reservists "without specification of component."

- Authorize ordering members of the Ready Reserve to active duty for Air Defense Missions.

- Permit Army JAG School to award degrees and credits.

- Provide omnibus amendments to the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

- Establish a career pattern for Marine Corps officer-lawyers.

- Change the name of the Distinguished Service Cross and Soldier's Medal in the Air Force to the "Air Force Cross" and "Airmen's Medal."

- Authorize the Navy to extend enlistments for periods of six years instead of the present four.

- Provide WAAC service credit for longevity and retirement.

- Amend the Reserve Officer Personnel Act.

- Allow three- and four-star officers to continue receiving the pay of those ranks while hospitalized and while in-between duty assignments.

- Establish a uniform ration allowance for members of all four Armed Services.

President Presents 1958 Harmon Trophies

General Curtis E. LeMay and Cdr. Jack R. Hunt received the 1958 Harmon Trophies for outstanding achievements in aviation from President Eisenhower on 12 November at a White House ceremony.

General LeMay, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, was honored for piloting a KC-135 Stratotanker 6,322 miles non-stop, from Westover AFB, Mass., to Ezeiza Field, Buenos Aires, Argentina, last November.

Commander Hunt was pilot of the blimp which made the first non-stop trip across the Atlantic without refueling, in lighter-than-air craft history. The flight, which covered 9,448 miles in 264 hours, was completed in March, 1957.

Since making the flight, Commander Hunt has returned to inactive duty.

"ARCON" Helps Polaris Program

The Navy has tested successfully a new research rocket, known as Arcon, which it expects to aid in predicting flight vibration conditions of the Lockheed Fleet Ballistic Missile Polaris.

An advanced general purpose upper-air vehicle, Arcon is 12 feet long and six inches in diameter. It can carry a 40-pound instrument payload to a height of 70 miles, or a 10-pound payload up to 100 miles.

A series of test flights recently were conducted at Wallops Island, Va. The vibration data will be compared with the static tests of Arcon carried out at the Atlantic Research Test Facility, Alexandria, Va.

Another new research rocket, Iris, designed to carry a 100-pound payload 200 miles high is expected to be completed early next year. A third, Arcas, which is useful in routine weather collection data, as well as research, began testing in October.

GENERAL TAYLOR IS TOO MUCH a soldier and a gentleman to say so in plain language, but he made it clear at his Pentagon news conference (see Page 2) that critics who insist that the Army needs to be modernized must be prepared to back up their demands with adequate budget allocations, or else they should be quiet. During recent weeks, Secretary of Defense McElroy and General Twining have indicated that they are not satisfied with the state of modernization in the Army. Neither is the Army Chief of Staff.

QUESTIONED CLOSELY BY NEWSMEN, General Taylor said the Army requires an annual procurement program of $3 billion for 5 years—total cost $15 billion—to reach the "compact, modern force," about which all military leaders are in agreement.

FOR PEOPLE IN THE ARMY, some of whom have been concerned that their Chief has not been outspoken enough in Pentagon councils, General Taylor's forthright statements at his news conference will be most heartening. Significant also was the fact that the Chief of Staff did not retreat from his previously stated remarks to Congress that the Army should have 925,000 men, instead of the present force of 900,000, and the projected strength of 870,000.

GENERAL TAYLOR'S CANDOR in responding to the difficult questions on manpower will win him praise from all quarters. He has stated his professional convictions, but has emphasized that, as a soldier, he intends to do everything possible to achieve maximum results with the manpower level determined by his superiors.

DEMANDS FOR TECHNICAL SKILLS in Armed Forces enlisted ranks continue to rise. The Cordiner Committee has been told that a 39% enlisted need for mechanics and technicians during the fighting in Korea rose to 45% in the last fiscal year, and will hit 47% by next 30 June.

THE NAVY TRAILS THE OTHER SERVICES in raising the experience level in its enlisted ranks. The Army, which had 30% with at least four years' service, in fiscal '56, reports 37% in that category today. The Air Force rise has been from 40% to 49%; Marine Corps from 26% to 31%; but the Navy has boosted its four-year experience level by 1% to 38%.

WITHDRAWAL OF U. S. FORCES FROM LEBANON has permitted the Army to announce plans for the shift of the general officer who has been Chairman of the Joint Middle East Planning Group in the JCS. He is Maj. Gen. Verdi B. Barnes, who will succeed Maj. Gen. Thomas E. de Shazo as CG of the Artillery and Missile Center at Ft. Sill, Okla. General de Shazo goes to Third Army Headquarters, Ft. McPherson, Ga., effective 1 February.

TOOTHACHE TROUBLES following extractions have been under study by Navy's Dental Research Facility at Great Lakes, Ill. A total of 3,320 patients who had extractions were given random envelopes containing four plain white tablets, to be used in event of pain. Some 1,078, who suffered no pain, did not use any tablets. Intriguing discovery was that 77.1% who used placebo "control" tablets reported relief from pain. There was a range of 82.3% to 92.1% in relief of pain among patients who used non-narcotic analgesic tablets in the test.

IT'S A DOG GONE SITUATION in the training of military dogs. The Army once trained K-9's for itself and the Air Force. Now, the Air Force trains dogs for the Army and itself. The Army closed its Dog Training Center at Ft. Carson, Colo., because most of the output was going to the Air Force. Now, the Army is in the market for 1000 German Shepherd dogs to be used at NIKE and other missile sites. The dogs will be trained at Lackland AFB, Tex. Drawing a color line, the Army says the dogs it purchases may be "any inconspicuous color, no whites."

LT. BILL THOMSON, a jet pilot and USMA '57 graduate, has become the only Air Force member of the U. S. Pentathlon Team, training at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. A former Eastern Collegiate high bar champion, he is the son of Col. and Mrs. Earl Thomson, USA-Ret., of Nashville, Tenn.

WHAT KIND OF A BIRD IS A "BOAR"? Existence of "Boar" was revealed at the Navy's First Missile Transportation Seminar, held recently at the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif. The seminar, conducted under secret security classification, was arranged to apprise the transportation industry of the safest way to handle Navy missiles during transit. The "Boar" was on display in sealed metal drums. A photograph of the "secret" weapon, encased in sheaths of metal, has been published in the Navy Supply Corps' latest Newsletter.

A NEW NAVY AIR-TO-AIR MISSILE, dubbed "Eagle" is reported in the Defense Department's Fact Sheet on Guided Missiles. Six Navy missiles are in operation with the Fleet. Ten others, including the "Eagle" and the "Boar," are reported under development.

THE AIR TRAINING COMMAND reports a shortage of applications from airmen for flying training. There's a requirement that 20% of each flying class must be comprised of enlisted AF personnel.

PRE-CHRISTMAS PROMOTIONS to top Air Force enlisted ranks will become an annual event beginning next year. Effective 1 December 1959, the Air Force intends to make all promotions to E-7 (master sergeant), E-8 (senior master sergeant), and E-9 (chief master sergeant) once a year on that date. This year, however, there will be no 1 December promotions to those ranks.

MORE THAN 15,000 OHIO VETERANS of the Korean War have failed to file for a State bonus that is worth an average of $258 to living veterans and $341 to next-of-kin. Deadline is 31 December 1958, according to Fund Director C. W. Gobel.

FOR THE SECOND STRAIGHT YEAR, the Army has won an award from the National Association of Suggestion Systems as the government agency which has done the most to improve its incentive awards program. During the past fiscal year, Army employees submitted 206 suggestions for each 1,000 employees. This was a gain from 146 per 1,000 in fiscal '57.

MAAG OFFICERS IN THE FAR EAST have won high praise from Secretary McElroy and General Taylor, both of whom have recently completed Pacific inspection trips. The two Pentagon leaders, at separate news conferences last week, made special points of saluting the work done by the MAAG units. The need for top caliber people with the military assistance teams will be cited by Pentagon officials as one reason why it will be difficult to slash the strength in colonel and Navy captain ranks, as advocated by some legislators.

MISSILE ACCIDENTS will be the subject of new legislation being prepared at the Pentagon. The Services want Congressional approval to make emergency payments to civilians in case of missile accidents. Such authorization already is provided for accidents involving other types of weapons.

THE PENTAGON'S '59 LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM (page 1), also will seek Capitol approval for training of Reserves for wartime censorship duties. Congress also will be asked to raise the number of top scientific and professional personnel slots in the Services.

THE ADMINISTRATION MUST DECIDE whether to fight for additional funds for the Medicare program in the next session of Congress, or accept further cuts in the care of military families. During October, Medicare expenditures reached $9.2 million. At this monthly rate, the annual cost would be far in excess of the $72 million voted for this fiscal year.

PROUD DESTROYER FORCE OFFICERS have been observed in Washington wearing an unauthorized miniature destroyer device with their campaign ribbons. Aviators and submariners, of course, are permitted to wear wings or dolphins, but there's nothing in Navy uniform regulations giving comparable rights to destroyermen. The unofficial "wear test" action points up the strong feeling among destroyermen—some of whom call themselves "infantrymen of the sea"—that they should be allowed to wear a distinctive device.

TRAINED MISSILE EXPERTS from France and Belgium have been graduated from the Army's Ordnance Guided Missile School at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., commanded by Col. H. S. Newhall. Previously, missile students from Italy, Denmark, and Norway completed courses at Redstone. In training are members of the Armed Forces of West Germany, Turkey, The Netherlands, and Greece.

FIRST TERM REENLISTMENT RATES in the Army and Marine Corps have shown an identical rise—from 19% to 26% from fiscal '57 to fiscal '59 (first two months). The Navy's first term rate has gone from 16% to 19%; the Air Force's from 28% to 36%. During fiscal '58, the Air Force hit a 44% rate; the Navy was also higher last year, with 21%.

A BIG FACTOR in improving the quality of Armed Forces personnel was the program of weeding out "low potential" enlistees during fiscal '58. The Army dropped 70,000; Navy, 19,500; and Air Force, 27,500.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: The Navy's first nuclear-powered frigate will cost over $100 million; this compares with a $9 million cost for WWII destroyers, and $35 million for the new guided missile destroyers. . . . Air Force major aircraft accidents during the first six months of '58 hit an all-time low of 10.8 per 100,000 hours flown, down from a 14.2 rate for the same period in '57. However, the fatality rate has increased; in 23% of major accidents, there has been at least one fatality.

THE 16th ANNIVERSARY of the first issue of the K-ration to U. S. soldiers will be marked, quietly, on 27 November. . . . Archers at the huge Eglin AFB, Fla., Air Proving Ground Center killed 17 deer during a 16-day season which ended early this month, one of them a 9-point buck weighing 103 pounds drawn; during September and October, 12 deer were killed by motor vehicles at Eglin.

Col. Warner Of Hollywood Receives Army Salute

Lt. Col. Jack M. Warner, Signal Corps,
USAR, Vice-President of Warner Brothers
Motion Picture Studios, has received a Department of the Army Certificate of Achievement.

The certificate, presented by Lt. Gen.
James D. O'Connell, Chief of the Signal Corps, was awarded to Colonel Warner for "exceptionally meritorious service" to the Army Signal Corps during the period of July 1953 to July 1958.

Colonel Warner went on active duty as a second lieutenant in the Army Signal Corps in 1942 and served four years. He was overseas as photographic officer with the First Army and 12th Army Group, serving through the campaigns in Normandy, Northern France the Ardennes,
Central Europe and the Rhineland.

Since 1949, he has had a mobilization assignment as Chief of the Western Signal Pictorial Center, Hollywood.

NEW TRAINING PROGRAM FOR ORDNANCE OFFICERS

The Army Ordnance Corps has begun a new indoctrination program to encourage young Regular Army Officers to choose Ordnance careers and help them develop into Ordnance troops commanders or managers of Ordnance activities.

Seventy-six officers are now enrolled in the training program, including about 19 at colleges or universities. When the program gets in full swing, Ordnance expects to have about 200 officers enrolled at all times. About 30% of these will be in educational institutions. The number of enrollments and the duration of the program depend, of course, upon the continuing availability of funds.

The new training program, normally lasting three to four years, will follow four stages:

1. Orientation: This consists of a four-week Company Officer Indoctrination Course at the Army Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. This course covers the history, organization, and function of the Ordnance Corps, plus the principles of design and manufacture, distribution, and field service of Ordnance materiel.

2. Advanced education: This encompasses one or two years at a civilian college or university for advanced study in technological and other specialized fields of value to Ordnance.

3. Ordnance development: This includes two or more duty assignments to provide balanced experience in the several types of Ordnance operations.

4. Field service preparation: Officers attend local troop schools receiving instruction in Ordnance field service operations.

budget.
Army officials will be asked to state why they believe more airlift is necessary, and Air Force leaders will be asked to explain why they think that the Army requests should remain as low priority items in military fundings.

Secretary McElroy, General Nathan F. Twining, JCS Chairman, and other Defense leaders can anticipate sharp questioning concerning plans, if any, for procurement of jet airlift.

THE "HEDGE"

Secretary McElroy was asked at last week's new conference to comment on recent remarks by Deputy Secretary Donald A. Quarles that the current budget could be expected to rise next year by about 5%.

"Do you regard that as accurate?" a newsman questioned Mr. McElroy.

The Secretary responded: "Well, Mr. Quarles is a very accurate man. I would believe, however, that this would be a statement that, while I didn't hear it made, must have been at least hedged."

Army Wives Council Okays Town Club

The Army Wives Council of Washington, D. C., has launched a new program to build a combination town club and residence in the Capital.

Final approval of the project came 19 November at Fort Myer, Va., when representatives of 44 member clubs voted unanimously to incorporate the Army Distaff Club which will carry through the program.

A committee of ten prominent Army wives will oversee the activities of the Distaff Club.

The committee includes Mesdames Maxwell D. Taylor, William H. Arnold, Samuel J. Burgess, Gordon R. Young, Hoy D. Davis, James Patton, Newell L. Hemmaway, Jasper Searles, Kenneth J. Hodgson and Robert F. Evans.

Mrs. Taylor has designated Maj. Gen. Mark McClure, USA-Ret., to be Treasurer.

The town club will include both transient and resident housing facilities, dining accommodations and a small infirmary.

No estimate was available as to the cost of the project.

The Wives Council hopes that sufficient money will be available to expand the small infirmary into a Potomac Post nursing home. This will be a project for the future, council officials said.

Mrs. Davis, council president, said that the response to articles about the Town Club project in THE JOURNAL "has been terrific."

"It shows we have a clear mandate from Army families to inaugurate this project," Mrs. Davis said. "As a result of THE JOURNAL articles, several hundred dollars already have been received from all over the world."

Mrs. Davis pointed out that the Council will need more money to cover organizational and incorporation expense pending the start of a full-scale fund raising drive.

She said that donations should be sent to the Army Wives Council, Box 9608, Washington 16, D. C.

The center has finished an orientation course, in which 56 officers and NCO wives participated. Diplomas were awarded to those completing the course.

Club Action

The Transportation Corps Women's Club entertained officers and wives of the Corps at a November cocktail buffet held at the Army-Navy Country Club.

The Chief of Transportation, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank S. Besson, Jr., attended with many division heads of the Corps. In charge of arrangements were Col. and Mrs. Carl H. Elges, assisted by Lt. Col. and Mrs. John C. Abercrombie, Maj. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Osborne and Maj. and Mrs. Frederick M. Eggen.

The Adjutants General Ladies Luncheon Group will hold its Christmas luncheon, Tuesday, 2 December at 12:15 p.m., at the Ft. McNair Officers Club, Washington, D. C.

Maj. Gen. Robert V. Lee, the recently appointed Adjutant General, will be the honor guest and speaker. The Sea Chanters, under the direction of Mr. Earl W. Richey, MUC, USN, will provide a musical program.

Ladies of the Military Personnel Procurement Division, with Mrs. Robert L. Anderson as chairman, will be hostesses. Mrs. Robert W. Sylvester and Mrs. Robert J. Karrer are in charge of decorations.

Ft. Belvoir, Va., members of the Military Police Wives Club of Washington, were hostesses at the Club's November luncheon at McKenzie Hall, Ft. Belvoir.

Mrs. Frances Fletcher of Falls Church, Va., gave a demonstration of Christmas gift wrapping and decorating, and the table decorations carried out the Christmas theme.

Mrs. William C. Smith, Hostess-Chairman, was assisted by Mesdames Knute

AF Wives Stress Space, Hear Secretary

THE accent was on space 13 November, when nearly 400 members of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club of Washington, D. C. gathered at the Army Navy Country Club for luncheon and a speech by Secretary James H. Douglas. He congratulated the Air Force wife on the important role played by Air Force Wives Clubs and the fine job she herself does as an ambassador of good will wherever the Air Force is stationed around the world.

The Secretary spoke of some of the new aircraft and missiles planned for the Air Force in the Space Age.

Seated with Secretary Douglas and Mrs. Raymond J. Reeves, Club President were: Mesdames Thomas D. White, Hostess and Honorary President; Donald Quarles, Wife of the Deputy Secretary of Defense; Mrs. Douglas; Malcolm MacIntyre, Wife of the Undersecretary of the Air Force; Curtis E. Also seated at the head table were: Mesdames Leland Stranathan, Albert T. Wilson, Hollingsworth Gregory, Claude McKinney, Andrew A. Chaffin, Andrew J. Alexander and Clay Thompson.

New Family Housing Units Due At Rucker; 310 For NCO's, 64 Co. Grade, 26 Field Grade

Invitations have been issued to contractors to bid for the construction of 400 family-type housing units in 200 duplex buildings at Ft. Rucker, Ala., under the Capehart housing program.

This will be the third increment of Capehart housing to be built at the fast-growing home of the Army Aviation Center, near Ozark, Ala., and will bring the total number of Capehart units at Rucker to 1,000.

The new construction will provide 40 two-bedroom homes, 210 three-bedroom homes, and 60 four-bedroom homes for noncommissioned officers; 10 two-bedroom homes and 54 three-bedroom homes for company-grade officers, and 18 three-bedroom homes and eight four-bedroom homes for field-grade officers.

FOR CHILDREN'S TUITION — Mrs. Richard A. Rislen, right, presents $1,000 to Mrs. Robert Crawford, president of El Paso County Chapter, Retarded Children, Inc., to help provide tuition for retarded children of Ft. Carson personnel at Colorado Springs' Hope House School. Half of the sum represented a contribution by the Ft. Carson Officers Wives Club and the other half a contribution from the profits of the Thrift Shop run by wives of Carson officer and NCO personnel.

Thorpe, Charles Miller, Thomas Gingell, Troy Searce, Edward Averill, Frederick Ulrick and James Carter.

Senior members of the Junior Army Navy Guild Organization had as their honor guests at luncheon on 18 November Mrs. Wilber M. Brucker, wife of the Secretary of the Army, and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor, wife of the Army Chief of Staff.

TAXED FOR NOTHING

Members of the WAC are being subjected to taxation without representation.

Just ten years ago, on 30 November 1948, the Comptroller General ruled that WAC, like all other Regular Army enlisted personnel, must support the U. S. Soldiers Home.

The Comptroller's decision has forced a 10 cent per month deduction from the pay of each enlisted WAC.

Only one WAC, Pfc. Regina Jones, has ever lived at the Soldiers Home in Washington, D. C. She was there from 2 September 1955 until 5 August 1957.

New Supply Center Chief; RAdm. Keith To D.C.

RAdm. Hugh C. Haynsworth, Jr., Assistant Chief, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts for Supply Management, takes command of the Naval Supply Center, Norfolk, Va., in January.

RAdm. Robert T. S. Keith, Commander, Naval Base Subic Bay, P. I., has been ordered to Washington as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Naval Reserve). He reports to his new post next Spring.

GUEST SPEAKER at the Garrison Wives' luncheon, Ft. Meade, Md., recently, was Miss Gertrude L. Poe, President of the Maryland Press Association and Editor of the Laurel News Leader (left), who as a member of the National Editorial Association, has recently returned from a visit to the Netherlands, Belgium, France and England. With her is Mrs. Harry L. Sievers, wife of the Post Commander.

Moving Families Get Household Goods Break

MILITARY families are assured they will be able to ship a full 500 pounds of household goods by express as a result of a recent change to the Joint Travel Regulations made at the request of the Navy's Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

Under old regulations, express shipments of up to 500 pounds gross weight of urgently needed household goods could be authorized by shipping officers.

BuSanda, however, felt that use of gross weights was unfair to the owner being moved since the weight of packing and crating varied, depending upon whether overseas movement was involved, the type of packing materials used and the kind of materials shipped. As a result, owners sometimes were charged for excess materials used in packing which they could not anticipate. This meant that families on the move had to be careful to ship household items weighing much less than the gross amount authorized by shipping officers.

The revision to the Joint Travel Regulations precludes owners from being shortchanged by permitting express shipments of up to 500 pounds net weight.

In cases when the net weight is not known, owners are allowed the authorized percentage for tare weight.

Service Weddings And Engagements

MAJ. Gen. (USAF) and Mrs. Leighton Ira Davis of Andrews AFB, D. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jennifer Garton, to Mr. James Chester Faris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnwill Faris of White Sands National Monument, N. Mex.

Miss Davis is a sophomore at the University of New Mexico, where her fiancé is a graduate student. Both were graduated from the Alamogordo, N. Mex. High School. General Davis was formerly Commander of the Air Force Missile Development Center at Holloman AFB, N. Mex. No date has been set for the wedding.

GINN-LUND—Lt. Col. Edythe M. Lund, ANC, Chief of Nursing Service at William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso, Tex., was married to Brig. Gen. L. Holmes Ginn, Jr., MC, USA-Ret, 1 November at St. Alban's Episcopal Church, El Paso. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alfred Lund of Hopewell Junction, N. Y.

The bride chose her sister, Miss E. Cora Lund of Hopewell Junction, as her honor attendant, and another sister, Capt. Evelyn Lund, as bridesmaid. Mr. George H. Ginn served as his father's best man and groomsmen were 1st Lt. Keith D. Meyers and Capt. Robert F. Haden.

General Ginn formerly commanded William Beaumont Army Hospital.

HOSTETLER-BROWN—The Base Chapel at Edwards AFB, Calif., 8 November was the setting for the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Diana Brown, daughter of the Chief of Staff at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Col. (USAF) and Mrs. William Morris Brown, Jr., and 1st Lt. Gerald Bruce Hostetler, USAF. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Luke Wells of Richland, Wash.

With Chaplain (Lt Col) Dwayne H. Mengel officiating and Colonel Brown giving his daughter in marriage, the bride was attended by Miss Linda Hutchinson, daughter of Col. Leroy C. Hutchinson of Kirtland AFB, N. Mex., as maid of honor, and Misses Carolyn Britt, Paula McBride and Myrna Lyons as bridesmaids with Miss Pat Cooper as junior bridesmaid. Maj. Merle Henderson of the Cambridge Research Center, served as best man.

Following a San Francisco honeymoon, the couple will be at home at Edwards AFB.

HALTIGAN-MENDELL—Col. (USA-Ret) and Mrs.

Mrs. Haltigan

Martin Michael Mendell of 5424 No. 17th St., Arlington, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Patricia Anne, to Mr. William John Haltigan, 8 November at the Post Chapel, Ft. Myer, Va. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William Haltigan of San Francisco, Calif., and the late Mr. Haltigan.

JASCH-BRADFORD—Mrs. Henry Colmore Bradford of 406 Brook Dr., Falls Church, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Marian Colmore, to Mr. Verlin E. Jasch of Washington, D. C.

Miss Bradford, daughter of the late Colonel Bradford, MC, USA, is a graduate of Washington Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., and Goucher College. Her fiancé, formerly of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Bethesda, Md., attended George Washington University. He is presently associated with the Margaret J. Dunkley Realty Co., Bethesda. A mid-Winter wedding is planned.

Leghorn, Italy—The Camp Darby Officers' Wives Club has elected Mrs. Richard B. Appleton, President. Other officers are Mesdames Dane M. Smith, Vice-President; Joseph A. Sokoloski, Recording Secretary; Alfred K. Day, Jr., Corresponding Secretary; Robert D. Peckham, Treasurer and Edward L. Allen, Jr., Assistant Treasurer.

People Of Service Score Successes

CONTRIBUTIONS to the United Givers Fund from personnel at Ft. Belvoir, Va., reached $45,394.73 as the drive ended last week. Col. Ray E. Adams, Campaign Chairman, said this represents 107% of the goal. . . . An Army unit has achieved the greatest amount of increase in contributions to the United Fund of any Federal agency in the St. Louis area. Brig. Gen. William B. Bunker, Commanding General of the Army Transportation Supply and Maintenance Command, has received a number of letters for the outstanding job accomplished by the officers and civilians of the command headquarters, which realized almost a 100% increase over what was contributed last year. . . . The Officers' Wives Club at Suffolk County, N. Y., AFB bolstered their Welfare Fund with more than $1,000 last week as proceeds from their annual bazaar. The Welfare Fund is maintained to enable the Wives to support a variety of charities in the surrounding communities, and the bazaar has traditionally been their most lucrative project.

The Thrift Shop, operated by the Woman's Club of Ft. Benning, Ga., is doing a $50,000 a year business. Under Chairmanship of Mrs. James C. Pleasant, the shop has realized a profit of $2,200 during the last four months—all of which has been turned over to charity. . . . The 82d Airborne Division Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives Club at Ft. Bragg, N. C., has as its number one project support for 75 children of the Falcon, N. C., Orphanage. A pledge of $25 a month, plus special help in the collection of clothes, furniture, and toys, has been made.

Navy Wives coffee klatches at NAS Memphis have accounted for a carload of items donated to the Convent of the Good Shepherd. The items were collected during one of the Wives' "bundle coffees," according to Mrs. Agnes Sullivan, Navy Wives Club President.

25th ANNIVERSARY—Col. William D. Jackson, USA, left, Mrs. Jackson, and Guy Lombardo drink a toast to the Jackson's 25th wedding anniversary. Colonel and Mrs. Jackson first met 26 years ago in the Coconut Grove, Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, when Lombardo was playing there. They observed their anniversary at the same place with the same artist. Col. Jackson commands the Los Angeles Military Subsistence Market Center.

CHOOSE O'SEA HOMES

Two retired Air Force families have received transportation authorization for overseas travel to establish homes following retirement.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Kengla, and their daughters, Olive, Jr., and Ann, and their son, James, will travel from 1204 Government Street, Mobile, Ala., to their home of selection, Munich, Germany, aboard the SS Constitution on 12 December.

Similar orders authorize the travel 19 November of Lt. Col. Andrew J. DeVaughn, 710 Mills Avenue, Gulfport, Miss., his wife, Blanche, and daughter Carolyn, aboard the USNS Geiger to "home of selection" London, England for the purpose of establishing residence after retirement. . . .

Service Folk

Among 22 senior students at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia at Fredericksburg listed in the current edition of "Who's Who Among Students at American Universities and Colleges," are Miss Julia Coates, daughter of Col. (USA-Ret) and Mrs. Harry Coates of Lexington, Va., and President of the Senior Honor Society, and Miss Dorothea Reeder, daughter of Col. (USA-Ret) and Mrs. Russell P. Reeder, Jr., of West Point, N. Y., and President of the Honor Council.

Miss Ann Dunn, 12-year-old daughter of the Commanding Officer of the 533d Engineer Company at Ft. Polk, La., Capt. and Mrs. Robert H. Dunn, has recently been awarded a trophy for the best slogan entered in a contest sponsored by the Fairbanks, Alaska, Health and Safety Council, when her father was with Headquarters, Yukon Command.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Army Will Give Added Brainpower To Help Future Combat Commanders

The Army hopes to give new "brains" to its battlefield commanders by the end of 1965.

Developed under the Army Fielddata Program, the "brains" will comprise an integrated computer network linking all levels from the army headquarters down through the battle groups. Some of the highly-mobile units, now in various stages of development, will be air-droppable and capable of moving anywhere with the field army.

When fully installed, the computer network will provide continuous and up-to-date data on such changing conditions as intelligence, logistics support, fire power, and troop strengths.

Equipment now being developed, Army officials emphasize, does not necessarily represent the final hardware which will go to the field. It is being developed mainly to test the computer concept for tactical use.

Largest of the new computers in the Fielddata program is Sylvania Electronic Systems' MOBDIC, which is designed for the Corps or Army Headquarters level. It will be aided by an International Business Machine data coordinator, being developed to receive and integrate information from lower echelons.

For the division level headquarters, Army planners will test Philco Corporation's Logipac and Basipac computers. These light-weight models—the Basipac weighs only 175 pounds—will be housed in all-weather shelters, 11 feet long, six and a half feet wide and six feet high.

IBM is also building a 175-pound computer and a data processor which, Army officials say, could be used at the division or corps level.

For the battle group, the Army is planning a Minipac general purpose transistorized computer, which will be small enough to mount on a Mechanical Mule. Industry bids on the Minipac will soon be requested by the Signal Corps Laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Testing of the future Army computers will be performed at a new $13.5 facility being constructed by the Thompson-Ramo-Wooldridge Corporation at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Naval Officer Joins Hoffman Laboratories; Army JAG Veteran Named To ITT Post

William M. Watkins has joined the Hoffman Laboratories Division, Hoffman Electronics Corporation, Los Angeles, it is announced by Richard A. Maher, Division Vice President-Engineering.

Mr. Watkins, named to the new position of Supervisor, Identification and Traffic Control Unit, of the Division's Navigation Section, will be responsible for the development and engineering of identification (IFF) and air traffic control (ATC) equipments.

During WWII, Mr. Watkins was a technical instructor at the Treasure Island, Calif., Electronics School and Electronic Officer aboard the USS Cangamon (CVE-26). He received his BSEE at the University of California in 1941.

Edward J. Whalen has been named Director of Contracts and Customer Relations at ITT Laboratories, Nutley, N. J., succeeding Mr. John E. Kahelin, Vice President of ITT's new International Electric Corporation.

Mr. Whalen, formerly Assistant Director of Contracts and Customer Relations, joined the Laboratories in 1954 after resigning as Chief of the Contract Law Branch at the Army's Judge Advocate General's office in the Pentagon. Prior to his Pentagon assignment, he was an officer with the JAGC in Korea and other parts of the Far East.

What's Ahead

The Society of the First Division, composed of men who served in the First Division in both World Wars (as well as in peace time) will hold its 41st Annual Reunion at the Manger Hotel in Rochester, New York, 21-23 August, 1959. Further information may be obtained from the Society at 5309 Germantown Avenue, Philadelphia, 44, Pa.

Millimeter Waves will be the subject of the ninth international symposium of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute's Microwave Research Institute, 31 March to 2 April in New York City. It will be sponsored by the AF Office of Scientific Research, Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory, and the Office of Naval Research.

Fairchild Renames

Missile Division

The Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation's Guided Missiles Division at Wyandanch, L. I., N. Y., has been renamed the Astrionics Division, according to an announcement by Richard S. Boutelle, Fairchild President.

The change, which becomes effective on 1 December, provides a more accurate definition of the division's prime mission which is the development and production of guidance and control (astrionics) systems and related electronic devices, Mr. Boutelle said.

The recent renaming of the Fairchild Aircraft Division at Hagerstown, Md., to the Fairchild Aircraft and Missiles Division, was also part of a Fairchild program of changing division names to reflect new major areas of interest and activities of each.

The Astrionics Division is currently engaged in research, design, development and production of guidance and control systems for the Air Force "Goose" missile and an Army surveillance drone. In addition, it is conducting development work on airborne detection systems.

Col. Morris New AF Rep. At Northrop; Other Defense-Industry Appointments

Col. Harold T. Morris, former Inspector General for the Ogden Air Materiel Area, Utah, has been named Air Force Plant Representative to Northrop Aircraft, Inc., Hawthorne, Calif., it is announced by Maj. Gen. P. H. Robey, Commander of the Ogden Air Materiel Area.

Colonel Morris

Colonel Morris was assigned to the OOAMA last July following duty as Chief of the Materiel Section for the Joint Air Force-Army-Navy U. S. European Command. He will reside with his wife and three children at 613 Via Del Monte in Palos Verdes, Calif.

Lt. D. A. Simcoe, Jr., Northrop Plant Representative for the past year and a half, is now on medical leave and is at the San Diego Naval Hospital following major surgery.

William P. Arnett has been designated Manager of the Research Administration Department at Allen B. Du Mont Laboratories, Inc., Clifton, N. J., under Robert T. Cavanagh, Director of the company's Research and Development Division. The Research and Development Division is engaged in a large number of military and defense projects in the fields of communications, nuclear instrumentation, military television and reconnaissance, display devices, computers, and radar. Mr. Arnett served with the Air Force during WW II.

BCA Service Company, Camden, N. J., has named Harry Reese, Jr., as Manager, Atomic Energy Services of its Government Service Department.

Martin Cooperstein has been named to head the Fire Control Department, Missile Systems Laboratory, of Sylvania Electric Products Inc., Waltham, Mass. He had been supervisor of the Guidance and Control Section for the Laboratory, one of three such facilities which make up the Waltham Laboratories.

Dr. Ruben F. Mettler, 36, has been appointed Executive Vice President and General Manager of the newly incorporated Space Technology Laboratories, Los Angeles, Calif. Until his recent appointment, Dr. Mettler served as Vice President and Assistant General Manager of the Laboratories, formerly a division of the Ramo-Wooldridge Corporation. STL is in charge of over-all scientific direction of the Air Force's Ballistic Missile Program which includes the Thor IRBM, Atlas, Titan, and Minuteman ICBMs and the recent Able I Space Probes.

Leo W. Tobin, Jr., has been appointed Manager of Milwaukee operations of AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors, which produces missile guidance systems and other products for the electronic, aviation and military fields.

General Electric's Technical Products Department, Syracuse, N. Y., has named Charles F. Merrigan to the newly established position of Manager of Scatter and Special Systems Engineering. He will be responsible for engineering design and development of new broadcast-type, over-the-horizon, and extended-range

JETSTAR PLANS

The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation has announced that its 600-mile-per-hour economy-sized JetStar will be put into production at the Georgia Division immediately.

Robert E. Gross, Chairman of the Board of Directors, said the go-ahead was given by the corporation's policy committee in order to provide an "off the shelf" utility jet which would be available for early delivery to military, governmental and civil users.

The JetStar was developed specifically in response to an Air Force request for a fast, high-altitude, long-range jet utility transport.

The first company to build a jet utility airplane prototype, Lockheed completed and flew the JetStar in a record 34 weeks in 1957.

Early this year, Lockheed became the first aircraft manufacturer to provide the Air Force a jet utility-cargo (UCX) airplane for evaluation. The company began its own testing on a second prototype last spring.

The JetStar will be offered in both the twin engine and the four engine configurations. In the two engine version, it will be powered by two Bristol Orpheus engines and in the four engine versions will be powered by four Pratt and Whitney JT-12 or four General Electric J-85 engines, depending upon the customer's choice.

communications systems for military and commercial applications.

Solar Aircraft Co., San Diego, Calif., has promoted Armin F. Raebel to the post of Chief Experimental Engineer.

Fairchild Camera And Instrument Corp., Syosset, L. I., N. Y., has appointed John H. Clemmer as Sales Engineer in the Los Angeles Marketing Office of its Defense Products Division.

ROCKET MEN — Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commanding general of the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command, listens as Goodyear Aircraft Corporation President T. A. Knowles describes quality control checkout of rocket motor case production during tour of the plant. The company, which recently completed a $1,000,000 expansion of production facilities, has manufactured rocket motors for the Nike Ajax, Nike Hercules, Nike Hawk, Recruit and Terrier missiles among others.

Col. Dasche Named To Missile S-2 Post

Col. Jay A. Dasche, USA, has been appointed S-2, Assistant for Security and Safety for Redstone Arsenal, Ala., under Col. Keith T. O'Keefe, Arsenal Commander. Colonel Dasche's last assignment was Provost Marshal at the U. S. Army Garrison, Northern Area, in Germany.

They End Careers

Col. Clarence J. McCall, USAF, Fifteenth Air Force Comptroller, has retired at Mather AFB, Calif., after 30 years service. He resides at 4917 Arlington Ave., Riverside, Calif. New 15th AF Comptroller is Col. Edward P. Bailey.

Chaplain (Col.) John J. Mullaney, USA, Chaplain of the Military District of Washington, has retired. He resides at 1200 South Courthouse Road, Arlington, Va.

1st Lt. Col. Joseph L. Fenton, USA, Ft. Devens, Mass., Inspector General, has retired after 34 years' service.

Keep Busy

1st Adm. Duncan S. Baker USNR-Ret., is Master of the USNS Card, first of four merchant seaman-manned utility aircraft carriers assigned to the Navy's Military Sea Transportation Service. The Card, with a crew of 13 officers and 62 men, replaces the USS Corregidor, now in the Reserve fleet after operating with a crew of 273 men while in combatant status.

The Card will transport airplanes, helicopters and large missiles from New Orleans to the U.K., North Europe and Mediterranean. By early next year, sister vessels, the Core, Croatan and Breton, will be in service.

RCA Radiation Guide Is Issued By Air Force

"A Radiobiology Guide" for power and research applications of nuclear energy is available without charge to Government agencies and Government contractors from the Aero Medical Laboratory, Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio.

The Guide, listed as WADC Technical Report 57-118 (I), was prepared by the Technical Publications Department of RCA Service Co., Inc., under an Air Research and Development Command contract.

Discussed in the guide are the following topics: nuclear physics; observed biological effects of radiation; shielding methods; monitoring instruments; medical evaluation of personnel; and treatment of injuries.

Single copies of the guide may be obtained without charge from the Armed Services Technical Information Agency, Arlington Hall Station, Arlington 12, Va., by requesting ASTIA Document Number AD-118082.

Pentagon Budget Pinch Will Hamper Cordiner Plans

From first page—

brought no suggestion of plans to ask Congress for increased Federal funds to accelerate construction of public quarters.

The Pentagon's 1959 Legislative Program, as revealed in this week's issue of THE JOURNAL, fails to mention at this point any plans for a program to improve quarters allowances, as urged by the Cordiner group.

The Defense Department does intend to press for two legislative items that are in line with Cordiner recommendations.

One, the so-called "White Charger" plan, would permit vitalization of officer ranks by authorizing accelerated retirement for permanent lieutenant colonels and colonels, Navy commanders and captains, who have over 20 years' service.

The Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps are anxious for such legislation, but the Army has taken the position that present laws are sufficient for an effective attrition program.

The Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps, it is to be noted, are confronted with serious "hump" problems.

As disclosed in the Pentagon Legislative Program, the plan will be to submit the Navy-Marine Corps "hump" legislation as a separate bill in the next session of Congress.

One reason for this is the concern that Congress, worried about the mounting costs of military retirements, may not endorse any plan that would shorten active duty careers.

The Pentagon also will propose that the new Congress take action on a Term Retention Bill that would provide contracts for Reservists.

During the past several years, there has been one legislative draft after another on this problem at the Pentagon and the Bureau of the Budget.

As a result of these delays, a House Armed Services Subcommittee last year took independent steps to correct the problem, but too late for completion of legislative action.

It's going to be interesting to see what the reaction will be in the 86th Congress to the watered-down Proficiency Pay Program that has been implemented, with top rewards of $30 a month.

Congress authorized Proficiency Pay of up to $150 a month, acting on the recommendation of the Cordiner Committee.

Efforts by Senator John Stennis (D-

Miss) of the Senate Armed Services Committee led to authorization of extra pay for many officers, but the Pentagon has given no indication that this will be implemented.

Certainly, Senator Stennis is going to demand an explanation.

The fact is that the Services generally are not enthusiastic over the plan for extra officer pay, considering it too difficult to administer equitably.

As the Cordiner Committee members finished their one-day session at the Pentagon last week, they left with these conclusions:

1. Considerable progress has been made in raising the quality of military career manpower.

2. But much remains to be done.

3. There will be no quick action to provide remote and isolated duty pay, or a boost in quarters allowance to compensate for the rise in the cost-of-living.

4. The Pentagon does intend to seek passage of White Charger, Navy-Marine Corps "hump" legislation, and the Term Retention Contract plan.

5. Beyond that, it's going to be up to Congress to show the initiative in driving ahead with the career attractiveness campaign.
